Research Data Management
Free courses for doctoral students

You want to know how to handle research data for your dissertation professionally? In winter term 2023/24, we offer six courses specifically for doctoral students!

While working on your doctoral thesis, you deal with a variety of research data – even if you might not call it like that. Just think of references, photos, interviews, maps, protocols, 3D scans, letters, film sequences, measurements, diaries, notes… These introductory courses provide you with life hacks for organising, documenting, storing, and publishing these data.
